

Quick Start Guide for the Rainberry Bulletin Board.

To get to RBB, visit MyRainberryBay.com. Click on the Bulletin Board button. Read a brief explanation of the Bulletin Board and press the link at the bottom. You will see the house for sale and rent forums which are open for unregistered users:

The screenshot shows the MyRainberryBay Forum homepage. At the top, there is a blue header with the phpBB logo and the forum name 'MyRainberryBayForum'. Below the header is a navigation bar with quick links, a search bar, and a 'Register' button. The main content area displays a table of forum categories under 'HOUSE SALES AND RENTALS'. Below the table is a login/register section with a 'I forgot my password' link. The footer contains site statistics and contact information.

RBB is set up so people use their real name; there will be no anonymous posts except for those two forums. Most residents have been pre-registered on RBB with a random password, so the first time you visit the forum you will click on the “I forgot my password” button.

RBB will send an email to the email address you have on file with the office and it will contain your username as well as a link to reset your password. Any time you forget your password, you can do the same thing. The username is usually your first name, a space, and your last name although names that have punctuation marks may be more complex. We have filtered out words like trustee, TTEE, POA, and other legalese that is not part of your name.

If you do not want to use your legal name and would prefer something that still identifies you to the other residents, send a private message to rbadmin once you are on the forum and we’ll change it.

Residents who do not currently get the Eblast will have to use the Register function on RBB, and since that is a manual process, there will be a delay until the administrators verify your information.

RBB is designed to run on PCs, Macs, tablets, and phones. For smaller screens, it will look different but the functionality is the same. It is currently divided into four categories; Information, Ask About, House Sales and Rentals, and For Sale/Lost and Found:

Each category contains individual forums that break down the categories into more specific areas of interest. Some forums are open for all users to post, others are limited to management, the board, and clubs and committees.

One of the strengths of RBB is that you can subscribe to a forum, topic, or even individual post. This means that any updates to that forum, topic, or post, will send you an email notifying you of the update with a direct link to the new content. For instance, if you subscribe to the Upcoming Events forum, you will receive email notification when new topics are created or existing topics are updated. Information about outages or progress on various projects will be posted under General News. There are sub-forums for Irrigation issues and the road project.

We have created a Test forum where you can create new topics, or reply to existing topics. When you click on the Test forum, you will see a screen like this:

We have created the topic's subject line and begun entering the body. We can use some of the editing tools to insert different fonts and a smiley. You can click on the Preview button and a preview of the post will appear above the body. This way you can see how the various edit tools turn out. Note the area at the bottom that allows you to disable smileys and bbcodes, don't bother with those now, but notice that your "signature" will be added and you can have RBB notify you by email when you get responses to your post. Your signature appears at the bottom of your posts, usually some clever saying. You can set that by using your User Profile options.

The "Notify me" option is how you subscribe to a post.

If you forgot to check this, or wish to subscribe to another post that already exists, use the tools option that appears below the post:

To subscribe to a whole forum, click the link at the bottom of the forum display – it will not be there if you have selected an individual post. Note that we are currently not subscribed – if we were, the button would say "unsubscribe":

Note the lines near the top of RBB. The Quick Links let you quickly see what you're looking for. FAQ is frequently asked questions and has short answers that address many questions you might have.

The line below that is called breadcrumbs and it shows you where you are in RBB and you can click any of those links to get back to where you want to go.

Currently I'm in Irrigation News. I can click any of those links, for instance, clicking Board Index takes me back to the main list of forums.

That's pretty much the basics. You can send private messages to other residents, or take part in polls that may be created. There are many options but the basics is sharing information about our community. This is our bulletin board. Its success and direction depends on you. Give it a try.
